Present: Chief Justice Rehnquist, Justice Blackmun, Justice O'Connor, Justice Scalia, Justice Kennedy, Justice Souter, and Justice Thomas.

The Chief Justice said:

"As we open this morning, I announce with sadness that our friend and colleague Thurgood Marshall, a former Justice of this Court, died yesterday, January 24, 1993, at the National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Maryland.

Born in Baltimore, Maryland in 1908, Thurgood Marshall was the grandson of a Union soldier, his namesake, and a great-grandson of a slave. His father worked as a dining-car waiter and a chief steward at a segregated club, and early instilled in his son the urge to question the legal status of minorities in this country. His mother taught school for over three decades and devoted herself to her two sons while they were growing up. Justice Marshall worked his way through Lincoln University and excelled at Howard University Law School under the tutelage of Charles Houston.

After a brief period in solo practice in Baltimore, Justice Marshall joined the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund, eventually becoming its special counsel and, later, its director. The most influential civil rights lawyer of this century, Justice Marshall designed and implemented the NAACP's legal strategy to eradicate racial discrimination in education, transportation, housing, and the voting booth. In court-houses across the country, he became the champion of equal opportunity for minorities. As an advocate, Justice Marshall won 29 cases before this Court, including the landmark Brown v. Board of Education.

He left the NAACP when President Kennedy appointed him to the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in 1961. In 1965, President Johnson named him Solicitor General and, two years later, appointed him an Associate Justice of this Court.

Justice Marshall's contributions to constitutional law before his appointment to this Court were singular. These contributions alone would entitle him to a prominent place in American history had he never served on this Court. Building on those earlier accomplishments, he became an important voice in shaping the decisional law during his twenty-four years on the Supreme Court bench.

The members of this Court will miss Justice Marshall's wit, warmth and charm, and I speak for them in expressing our profound sympathy to Mrs. Marshall, her sons Thurgood and John, the remainder of the Marshall family, and all those whose lives were touched by this extraordinary man. The recess this Court takes today will be in his memory. At an appropriate time, the traditional memorial observance of the Court and the Bar of the Court will be held in this Courtroom."

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

The Chief Justice said:

"As most of you know, our esteemed colleague, Justice White, is retiring from this bench and his colleagues have sent him this letter on this occasion which I will now read."

"Dear Byron:

"Your decision to retire from the Court has brought to each of us a profound sense of sadness. You came here more than thirty-one years ago, and have played a pivotal part in the deliberations and decisions of this institution with three different Chief Justices during the administration of eight different Presidents.

"You brought to the Court a reputation for excellence in many fields — scholar-athlete, combat intelligence officer in the South Pacific during World War II, successful private lawyer, Deputy Attorney General. Your long service here has greatly enhanced that reputation, as you have exhibited a firm resolve not to be classified in any one doctrinal pigeonhole. The important opinions which you have authored for the Court in virtually every field of law with which we deal will remain as a testament to your years of service here.

"Every cloud, they say, has a silver lining; for us the silver lining to your retirement is that you leave in good health, and plan to remain here in the Washington area, at least for the time being. You will be missed at our Conferences, but we will continue to enjoy your friendship which means so much to each of us.

Affectionately,

Antonin Scalia
Anthony M. Kennedy
David H. Souter
Clarence Thomas

William H. Rehnquist
Harry A. Blackmun
John Paul Stevens
Sandra Day O'Connor"

Justice White replied as follows:

"Dear Colleagues,

"I am grateful for your very generous letter on the occasion of my retirement, which is now upon me. There is no doubt that I shall miss the Court very much, primarily because I shall no longer have the pleasure and excitement of working in a small group of nine Justices, all of whom day after day and year after year are together dealing with the same issues and cases in an attempt to arrive at satisfactory decisions. I have sat with 20 Justices in my time here and have had great respect for the ability and integrity of each of them. I have treasured their friendship. Of course, Justices differ with one another on all sorts of issues, but we have not held grudges and have gotten along remarkably well. That is how it should be.

“This Court is a very small organization for the freight it carries, and its work is made possible only by the competent and dedicated service of those who work here. I shall always be grateful to all of them for their willing, friendly and reliable help down through the years.

“Since I remain a federal judge and will likely sit on Courts of Appeals from time to time, it will be necessary for me to follow the Court’s work. No longer will I be able to agree with or dissent from a Court’s opinion. Hence, like any other Court of Appeals judge, I hope the Court’s mandates will be clear, crisp, and leave those of us below with as little room as possible for disagreement about their meaning.

“The Court is a great institution, and I wish it well. It has been good to me.

Cheers,
Byron”
